Capcom Enters Indian Market

The big players in the gaming industry, Microsoft and Sony have launched their current generation gaming consoles, the Xbox 360 and the PS3 respectively, in India. But many a time, video game publishers have not got some of the biggest games to India. Gamers here had to then order the games from online sites but at a price.

Now it has emerged that Capcom has entered into an agreement with Milestone Interactive Software Limited in India. Mumbai-based Milestone will now become the first ever official distribution partner for Capcom's games in the country.

Jayant Sharma is the chief executive officer of Milestone Interactive Software Limited. He commented, "Capcom has been at the forefront of the interactive entertainment industry for 25 years and the opportunity to become its official distributor in India is a great addition to Milestone Interactive's portfolio."

With Capcom teaming up with Milestone Interactive, Indian gamers can now expect the launch of games like Devil May Cry 4 as well as Dead Rising and Lost Planet Extreme Condition.
